NRS 159 and NRS 253

NRS 159 Describes the General Provisions of Adult Guardianships, Court Proceedings, Powers and Duties of the Guardian, Management of large and small estates, the Protected Person's Bill of Rights, duties of guardians to family and interested parties, and establishes the Guardianship Compliance Office.

NRS 253 Describes the establishment of the Public Guardians, qualifications, powers and duties, and the ability for guardians to request an advance of county funds to assist in managing a protected person's estate.

*Many other statutes that grant guardians authority depending on circumstances.

Standards and Ethics of Guardian

National Guardianship Association adopted a code of ethics in 1991 to help guide guardianship practice.

In 2000 NGA Developed 7 original standards.

In 2022, after 4 subsequent revisions, the NGA presented the current 25 standards we have today.

Includes Practical Standards and Aspirational Principles

Intentional language to imply duties, create discretion in authority, recognize mandates and prohibitions, and highlight rights of individuals.

How to Spot A Good Guardian

A Good Guardian:

- Treats the person under guardianship with dignity
- Involves the person in all decision making, to the greatest extent possible
- Places the least restrictive options on the person's freedoms and rights
- Maximizes the self reliance, dignity, and independence of the person
- Respects that the money and property that is being managed belong to the person
- Adheres to the highest professional standards and ethical principles defined by the State and the National Guardianship Association

Looking to the Future

Strengthen Protections Against Elder Abuse

- Support the Investigation and Prosecution of Elder Abuse Cases
- Support cross-disciplinary training on Elder Abuse Awareness through
- Develop a Broad-Based Public Awareness Campaign to increase awareness and understanding of elder abuse in the community.

Housing

- Working with our city and private partners to increase supply of accessible, affordable, adaptable housing
- Consider housing initiatives that target divorced, separated, widowed, and disabled seniors living alone. Consider housing initiatives that offer supportive housing in the 55-65 demographic.
